Defense — a Job for Industrial Giants

The best over-all picture of the National Defense effort yet drawn comes from the pen of William Feather, editor of the Imperial Type Metal magazine. In words of one syllable this trade editor explains it so that everyone can understand.

Writes Feather:

$115,000 Asked in Suit Against Fulton Concern

Three Persons Seek Damages From W. E. Cox & Sons

A civil case against W. E. Cox and sons of Fulton was entered in Circuit Court shortly before noon Thursday by D. W. Futrell, administrator of the estate of Alfred Futrell.

The plaintiff seeks to obtain $50,000 for the widow of Alfred Futrell, who died from injuries alleged to have been received when a gin burned at Fulton in June, 1938. For the daughter of the deceased man, the administrator is asking $25,000 damages.

Hearing of another case concerning injuries alleged to have been received by J. D. Blankenship, Jr., in the same gin burning was combined with the previous case. The father of young Blankenship, who is a minor, is seeking to gain $40,000 from W. E. Cox and Sons for the alleged injury of his son.

Lookadoo, Thompson, and Carrigan are the lawyers for the plaintiff and Atkins and Stewart represent the defendants in the case.

The jury handed down a verdict for the defendant in three combined cases of Walker, Bateman, and Hazard, the plaintiffs, against the Missouri Pacific Railroad company, the defendant. The plaintiffs were asking $3,000 in alleged damages to their crops in the years 1933, 1934, and 1935, which they claimed were caused by a water condition resulting from the railroad bridge spanning a creek on the Walker farm.

Two Slightly Hurt in Wreck

Mrs. D. Tucker Suffers Bruises When Cars Collide

Dallas Tucker, Southwestern Proving Ground worker, and wife, escaped with minor injuries Wednesday night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another about 6 miles southeast on Hope highway 4.

Mrs. Tucker suffered bruises and scratches, while the unidentified driver of the second automobile was not hurt.

Both automobiles were badly damaged.

U. S. Ships Ordered to Avoid Jap Ports

SHANGHAI.—(P)—The U. S. Navy has issued orders to at least two American passenger liners to avoid Japanese ports on current voyages in the Orient, informed sources announced Thursday.

The source asserted that it was apparent that the U. S. was taking no chances of any sudden Japanese naval action in the present crisis.

Those New Taxes

Taxes are some of the more certain certainties of this current era with a raft of new and increased levies having just gone into effect. You're paying them, so check up on how much you know about these new federal taxes.

1. What tax is now charged on local phone calls?

2. To what figures have income tax exemptions for single and married persons been lowered?

3. What is the tax per pack on playing cards?

4. You pay the same tax on sporting goods, jewelry, furs, musical instruments, radios and refrigerators. What per cent of the purchase price is it?

5. What annual tax do owners of automobiles and of pinball machines pay?

British Hint at Land and Sea Attack on Italy

All-Out Aid Promised Russia in General Debate on War

LONDON.—(P)—Attacks described to knock Italy out of the war, night land raids on the German-held coast of the continent and a fighting British stand along-side the Red army in the Ukraine were advocated by a full dress war debate in the House of Commons Thursday.

Lord Beaverbrook, back from Moscow, told the House of Lords that Russia's great losses of war supply manufacturing funds had left the USSR in a position akin to that of Britain after Dunkirk.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden replying for the government in Commons said "we realize what opportunities this German attack (on Russia) offers us" but added that to tell what plan of action will be taken would be playing into the hands of the enemy.

"We are going to give Russia every help in our power and by every means."

Beaverbrook said the U. S. and British missions to Moscow had promised Stalin to make up Russia's losses in tanks and planes "with shipments from our own production lines."

He declared the situation in Russia was grave "despite the development of movable industries."

"Stalin described those industries as leap frog industries which could be moved backwards or forward as the enemy moved," he said.

The speaker at the same time telling commons that the people of Britain were ready to face grave new crises for Russia said that many felt that not enough was being done.

A majority of those taking part in the debate agreed that a large scale invasion of Britain would stand little chance of success but Commander Stephen King-Hall, laborite party, asserted that Hitler's partner Italy was "open to vital possibilities."

Another laborite opening the debate for the opposition declared "the army wants to fight" and asserted the Volga had become Britain's frontier. He added "we now have powerful units in the Middle East and I believe our people would be happy if some part of those forces could support Russia in the Ukraine."

Beaverbrook said Russia's greatest enemy was for tanks.

Old Disease 'Conqueror's Smallpox,' and Adolf Hitler

Hitler Finally Shows Symptoms of Disease That Affects Dictators

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Adolf Hitler has finally shown symptoms of the disease that has affected all the dictators who preceded him in world history.

In this war, conqueror's smallpox is a third front. The first is the English Channel. The second is Russia.

Conqueror's smallpox is the malady that afflicts people who are willing to risk their lives to protect conquest. So far, Hitler has not caught the disease in its most virulent form. Most international observers suspect the outbreak in European states may be premature, and will not become violent at this time.

There are several reasons:

Hitler has more powerful antidotes than any previous dictator ever had. The airplane and the tank can do more to stop revolt than any other weapons of history. Tires and arms are pop guns against planes and tanks.

In the second place, the outbreak is not well enough organized to impede Hitler's war efforts. It is too sporadic.

Meanwhile Hitler has an excuse to kill off leaders in nations where revolts have occurred, together with their "tools."

How and why no dictator ever escapes this disease is a mystery peculiar to history. Tons and tons of literature have been written about it, but none of the explanations is wholly satisfactory.

Outstanding example of a ruler who suffered from conqueror's smallpox is Charles V, the first king who actually tried to set up a United States of Europe.

In his old age, Charles V stayed in the saddle for months on end, in a desperate attempt to hold together

Program Calls for Expansion of Air Forces

Present Strength to Be Tripled Secretary Stimson Discloses

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Secretary Stimson announced War Department preparation Thursday to expand the army air forces to 400,000 flying cadets and enlisted men by next June 30, almost tripling the present strength.

The present organization of the air force is based on 54 combat groups whereas the enlarged program calls for 84 such groups, each composed of several squadrons.

Stimson said the 54 group undertaking was well on the way but not yet completed.

Congress was told the original program provided for a force of 25,000 planes but declined to state how many were in service or how many were contemplated under the new plan.

It was announced at the same time a 3-fold expansion of courses for officers in rifle and heavy weapons company work at infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., to permit instruction of 3,000 officer students beginning about January 1.

Another Stimson disclosure was that some 30 Chinese pilots and some mechanics had arrived in this country for training. Six British Royal Air Force pilots with war experience are attached to exchange information on air combat problems, it was also stated.

Trains Collide Near Brinkley

Two Injured When Passenger Rams Freight Train

BRINKLEY.—(P)—A Memphis bound passenger train of the Cotton Belt Railroad rammed the rear end of a freight train near Brinkley station Thursday injuring two persons and damaging the passenger train's locomotive and three freight cars.

Ray Wilkins, 55, Pine Bluff, engineer suffered a broken collar bone and ribs. Railroad officials said a negro woman passenger suffered a sprained back and neck and had been taken to a Memphis hospital.

We've taken on a job that dwarfs every other job. It's the biggest thing this nation ever tackled.

Something else to think about:

To hit an airplane that's traveling 300 miles an hour requires a gun and projectile that are as near perfect as anything can be. But what avail are these perfect guns and projectiles if the men who fire them don't know their job and can't score a hit? If it takes a year to train a man to feed white-hot bars into a forging machine, how long does it take to train a man to hit a target moving five times as fast as an eagle?

Beaverbrook said Russia's greatest the nations he had conquered. At last he gave up, and relived to a monarch.

Most historians suspect the chief symptom of conqueror's smallpox is an filterable virus known as "the spirit of nationalism." Nothing seems able to kill this spirit if it has the will to live. Genghis Khan, Alexander, Napoleon could not muster enough terror, enough force of arms to kill that spirit.

Draw a ring around the places where major incidents of anti-Nazi rebellion have flared. Despite censorship, the shoring is impressive. How many hundreds of unmentionable, minor—but ultimately exhausting—incidents have occurred nobody knows.

Every "incident" is loudly debilitating to Germany. First, it detracts around all season by some of the best teams in the state, will meet here at Hannom Stadium Friday night.

Hannom has suffered five losses and won only a single contest. Clarksville, Camden and Hot Springs in conference play.

Every German soldier required to keep the peace in a conquered country is a man lost from the fighting front. Furthermore, he sometimes is a man lost from productive enterprise. It has been necessary to call up older reservists to replace young fighting men needed at the Russian front.

Germany has shown no slackening of her policy of militant reprisal for sabotage and subversion. Hundreds have been shot by firing squads in pursuit of that policy, hostages admittedly innocent of the crimes for which they died.

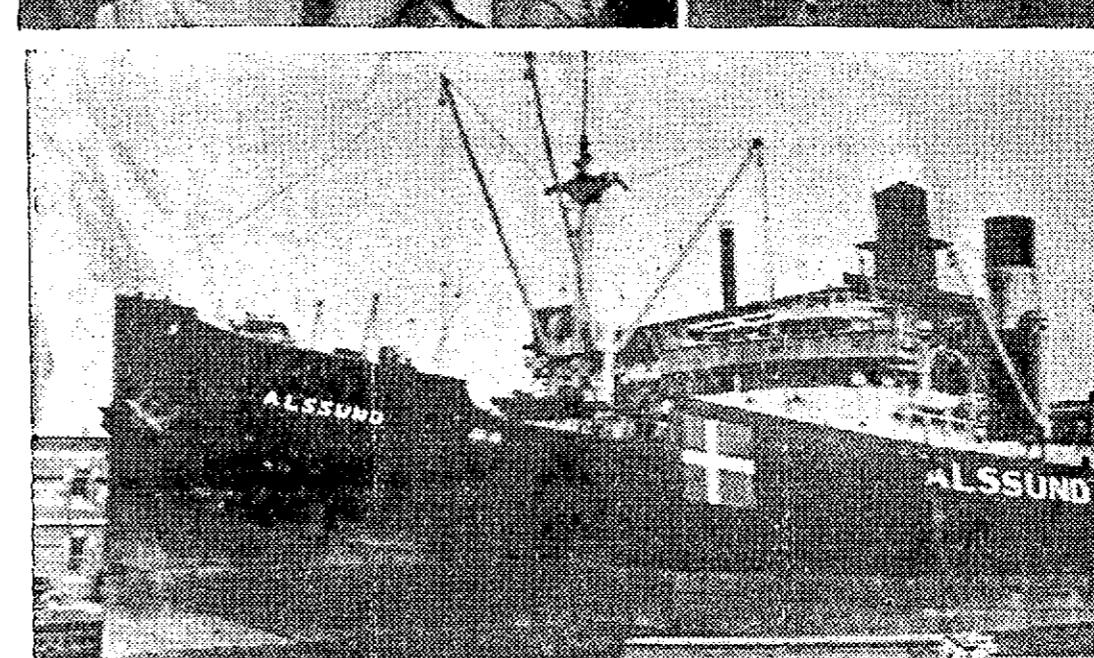

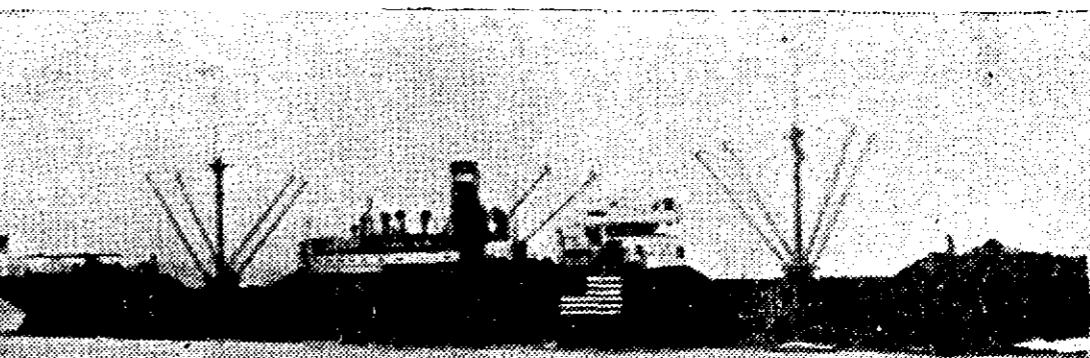

It's possible that sheer terror may deter conquered populations from further depredations. It's also possible that it won't. It hasn't to date.

If it doesn't, he bird from may turn out to be extremely important.

MURDER IN PARADISE

By MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

THE STORY: Quiet Paradise Lake is the scene of two murders—handsome Herbert Cord, who haunted a new flaneuse, Marge Dixon, in the face of his lost summer's love, Jennie Morris, and whom police suspect gangster Stu Verrett of killing them, straight-faced Miss Mille Morris, Jennie's aunt, who had few friends but no enemies. It is Maudie O'Connor who finds both bodies, and both her daughter, Mary, and reporter Dennis Flynn suspect her of knowing more than she reveals. Maudie has done some sleuthing, talked with local editor Ted Palmer, who obviously loves Jennie, and innkeeper Charlie Gordon, a contemporary of Miss Mille's. Maudie wonders if Jennie and Liza Holmes, her maid, should stay in the old Morris house alone. After Flynn has gone back to the city, he is followed home by a man, who is evidently Maudie and Mary, gets away before they can discover who it is.

Book Review
"The Hill of Doves," by Stuart Cloete is the story of the first Boer war of 1880; even more it is the story of Anna, who longs to be beautiful for Dirk, her young Boer lover. Anna is strong, gentle, capable, and passionate. Her love story is the main theme of the book, but like all Stuart Cloete's novels, the whole is produced from a rich variety of characters and incident.

Cloete knows and loves the land and people of whom he writes. He has as much feeling for the small and myriad life of the veld as Boet, Dirk's blind brother; as much love for a butterfly as for a battle. In these days it is good to read a novel so beautifully proportioned as to man and nature, character and action, that is rendering it one lives momentarily on the grander scale of these courageous people.

Many Agencies Are Eager to Help

Once a family makes a budget, who will be boss, the family or the lig-

The ideal answer is: NEITHER. A good budget makes peace and plea-its money. However, a good budget must be made carefully. Thought, common sense, and knowledge of home financing are needed.

Then, where can the person or family who needs help in budgeting go for it?

There, where can the person or family who needs help in budgeting go for it?

There are more sources of advice than most people know. Retail houses and banks in many cities provide help and some employers offer it to defense workers.

Most family aid agencies which have trained home economists on their staffs will give budget service on request. So if you get seriously interested in budgeting and find yourself stuck worthwhile to see whether there's a

"No" Never Becomes "Yes"

When Sally begins to reform her family, they know so well that she is only being a natural adolescent that they don't have enough sympathy for her. They find her merely an amusing study, and if they have any pity, it is for themselves.

They never let their hearts rule their heads when it comes to saying "Yes" or "No" to a child—and so take away from their children the exciting hope that with wheeling a parental "No" might be changed into a well, all right—but.

They are so good at sensibly seeing their children's shortcomings that their children often develop terrible inferiority complexes.

Sometimes they are even so smart that their children recognize it and are deprived of the rightful feeling that they know more than their parents. And that is certainly hard on a child.

Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. May a man leave a girl in the chaperons' corner when their dance is finished and her escort is nowhere in sight, if he has to get back to his own date?

2. Should every guest at a dance go up and speak to the chaperons?

3. At a college dance where students know the chaperons, but the chaperons don't know all of the students, should the students introduce themselves when they go up to say good evening or to exchange a dance?

4. When a man helps a woman with her coat should she say "Thank you"?

5. If a girl cannot accept a date because she has a date with someone else, need she tell with whom she is going out?

What would you do if—

You are a man calling a girl for a date—

(a) Tell her what your plans are for the evening when you ask her for the date?

(b) Just say, "May I have a date Saturday night?"

Answers

1. Yes.

2. Yes.

3. Yes.

4. No.

5. All she needs to say is that she is sorry but she has already made other plans for the evening.

Tax-Drain on Wealthy Donors

Educators See Black Future for Private Colleges

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — The privately supported colleges and educational institutions of the United States are being ground between two rough and heavy millstones.

The upper stone is higher taxes and increasing demands by Defense Bond and USO drives, foreign relief and other war charities, all of which siphon off the riches of the rich, leaving less for endowments and donations to privately supported educational institutions.

The lower stone is continued low rates of return on invested funds of existing endowments, together with losses of principal.

Between those grindstones, every privately supported college in the country is operating with tightened belt today, and faces a critical period in the next few years.

Future May Be Settled in the Next Few Years

The situation is so critical that educators agreed with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., when he said that "the average citizen must decide whether he wants his charitable and educational institutions supported thru the government by taxation or privately through giving." The next few years may tell the story.

Hundreds of American colleges face serious curtailment; some face annihilation because of the effects of the defense program on their work. That is the deliberate opinion of Fred Pierce Corson, president of the Pennsylvania College Presidents' Association. Corson has suggested that something like the Students' Army Training Corps of 1917-1918 be established to help small colleges over the hump caused by decreased enrollment, and hence by decreased tuition income.

Private education in America has already been hard hit by loosened endowments and lower income returns," warns Dr. Rufus D. Smith, provost of New York University. "Chaotic, political, haphazard" approaches to an economy of total war, exemplified in tax policies designed to "break the rich," have led Dr. Smith to fear the closing of many private schools. Dr. Smith also sees a permanent problem in the shifting age makeup of the population, with youth constantly declining in proportion to other age groups.

The problem is a very real one. According to the John Price Jones Corporation, New York fund-raising consultants, publicly-announced gifts to charities and related projects fell off sharply in seven large cities in the first six months of 1941. This agency tabulated gifts of $43,051,198 in that period, as compared with $45,927,457 in the corresponding period of 1940, a drop of nearly three millions.

It is the small institution which is hardest hit. The University of Chicago, for instance, has raised $9,200,000 for its fiftieth anniversary fund. The largest universities, with large bodies of influential alumni, are doing all right. A composite study of 120 institutions and their endowments in 1939-40 by the American Council on Education Studies showed a net increase in principal funds of those institutions of $25,191,000.

But this apparently encouraging increase was almost entirely in the large institutions, those having endowments of more than $6,000,000. These institutions increased their funds by perhaps $33,000,000 but in the meantime, smaller institutions with endowments of less than $6,000,000 were suffering a loss of $8,000,000.

Some of these were also reporting as low as 2.30 per cent income on their endowments, due in part to non-productive investments, in part to low interest rates.

J. Harvey Cain, who compiled the report for the Council on Education Studies, saw a picture black enough, but not without hope. Nothing "considerable improvement in the rate of return earned on endowments funds in 1939-40." Cain continued, "the administrators of endowed colleges everywhere are discussing what effect tuition rates and well-equipped government-financed plants of publicly controlled institutions will have upon private colleges, with their higher tuition and less well-equipped plants. Times may change and demands on the tax dollar may force economies in publicly-controlled colleges that we cannot now foresee."

Cain believes that many inadequately financed and improperly staffed institutions will pass out of existence, but that the majority of well-established institutions will find ways to survive.

Hutchins on the Value of Private Institutions

Educators like President Hutchins of the University of Chicago have repeatedly pointed out that the United States ought not to surrender lightly the independence and variety which privately supported institutions give to the American educational picture.

Admitting freely that some of the finest universities are state-controlled, Hutchins believes that standards have greatly influenced the better state universities, and that without those privately-set standards there would be a temptation for the public institutions to let down, and to succumb to political influences as in Louisiana and Georgia under Governors Long and Talmadge.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has noted that "as the income of private schools goes down the income of state schools goes up. It is for the taxpayer to decide which form of support he wants."

The privately-owned colleges and universities survived the crisis of 1917-1918, but not without considerable help and sympathetic consideration from a government which consciously did not occur until after a great outcry from some residents of Washington. Along the Tidal Basin are planted the famous cherry trees, gift of the Japanese government, whose spring blooming draws thousands of visitors to the city.

Some of the trees will have to be cut down or removed if the memorial were to be beside the Tidal Basin. A regular "Save-These-Trees" campaign started, but the authorities remained firm. Actually, only 46 cherry trees were moved and 35, too old to move, were cut down. When the Tidal Basin shore line is changed, more will be moved and cut down, but a lot of new ones will be planted when the memorial is completed.

His 200th Anniversary Comes in 1943

The building is now 99 per cent complete, but dedication will be postponed, so that roads can be built and landscaping completed. The exterior of the building is Vermont marble, with Georgia white marble inside.

The biggest celebration of all is planned for April 13, 1943, 200th anniversary of Jefferson's birth. At that time, it is hoped to have in place a gigantic 18-foot bronze statue, showing him when he was about 60 years of age. It will occupy the central rotunda of the memorial building. Dordul Evans, the sculptor, won the commission in a nation-wide competition.

Did you ever make upside down rolls
the KARO way?

For Sunday breakfast or supper, these delicious Karo Buns will make your family "sit up and take notice". They're so flavorful, so satisfying... and really easy to make. Just follow this recipe:

KARO ROLLS
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour 1/2 cup melted butter
3 tbs. baking powder 2 tbs. granulated sugar
1/2 tbs. salt 1/4 cup Karo (blue label)
1/4 cup shortening 1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup milk 1/4 cup chopped dates

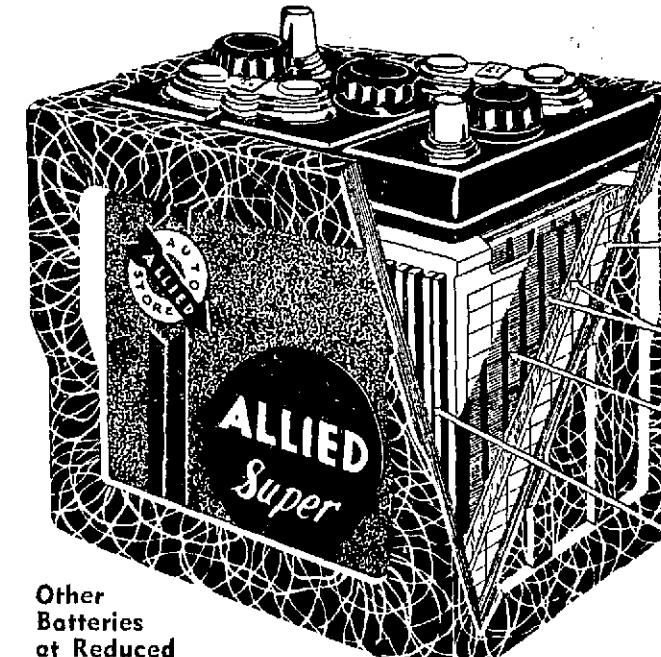

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening. Add milk slowly, to form a soft dough. Roll out on a lightly floured board into a rectangle 8x2 inches about 1/4 inch thick. Brush with 2 tbs. of the melted butter; sprinkle with sugar, then roll up as jelly roll. Cut into pieces 1 inch wide. Mix Karo with the remaining melted butter. Add nuts and dates, and spread in bottom of greased 8-inch cake pan, or in large muffin pans. Arrange circles of dough cut side down on top of Karo mixture. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes or until brown. Makes 14 to 16 rolls.

11% Increase in Poultry Is County Goal

Poultrymen Urged to Aid National Defense Program

Hempstead county poultrymen are asked to take all possible steps to increase the egg production of their flocks as their contribution to the farm defense program's goal of an 11 per cent increase in 1942 over 1941 national production. Oliver L. Adams, county agent, has announced.

The tentative goal for Hempstead county is 588,000 dozens, or a 10 per cent increase over 1941.

Because eggs are among the most nutritious foods and can be preserved and shipped in concentrated form, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R.

Wickard has designated them as one of the foods most urgently needed in the agricultural defense program. Dried eggs are being shipped to Great Britain under the lease-lease act.

Along with hogs, milk, chickens, and cheese, eggs have received a price guarantee by the U. S. Department of Agriculture of not less than 85 per cent of parity through 1942 as far as funds are available, Mr. Adams said. Egg prices for 1941 will average about 85 per cent of parity. Forecasts for next year indicate that 1942 egg prices may be even higher.

In view of this floor under price and the anticipated increase in consumer buying, poultrymen are fully justified in expanding their egg production, he said.

Arkansas' egg production goal in 1942 is 56,325,000 dozen, which is 14 per cent, or 6,942,000 dozen, over 1941.

Many Hempstead county farmers are planting oats to supplement winter feed. A good supply of green oats should replace about 10 per cent of the feed consumed and at the same time increase the value of feed consumed.

The woolen yarn manufacturers say they have sufficient stocks on hand, and in the stores of America, to produce 2,000,000 sweaters.

Quick Repair of Defense Plant

Work Starts One Week After Fire Halts Production

By WILLIS THORNEON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

CLEVELAND—Just one week after a key Cleveland defense plant lay in what looked like a seething ruin from a disastrous fire, the first vital airplane casting came Phoenix-like from the ashes.

That unbelievable-sounding record was achieved by the National Bronze and Aluminum Foundry Co., without whose aluminum castings Rolls-Royce engine castings for Packard, fuselage castings for North American Aviation, and other desperately-needed national defense materials would be bottlenecked.

Here's the Chronology:

Follow this blitz-chronology: Sept. 30—Shortly after noon a sudden blaze swept the plant. Before nightfall the whole thing was a twisted and charred mass of wreckage; damage was estimated at $2,250,000.

Oct. 1—Quick survey of the scarcely cool wreckage of plant and equipment resulted in a decision to clean it out and function on the spot rather than to seek new quarters. Five hundred telephone calls, telegrams, messenger relays went out to building trade contractors, business agents, lumber yards, trucking concerns, steel warehouses, electricians. As each twisted piece of steel framework was cleared from the wreckage, it was measured, and its duplicate ordered.

Oct. 2—By seven a. m. superintendents were on the job; workers came an hour later. From that moment on work never stopped for an instant, 24 hours a day, Saturday, Sunday, all day and all night. Immediate arrangements were made with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. to floodlight the whole job for night work. At all hours of the night and morning trucks kept arriving with material.

Driving rains fell and flooded the project; 120 raincoats had to be hurriedly rounded up and bought; the work went on.

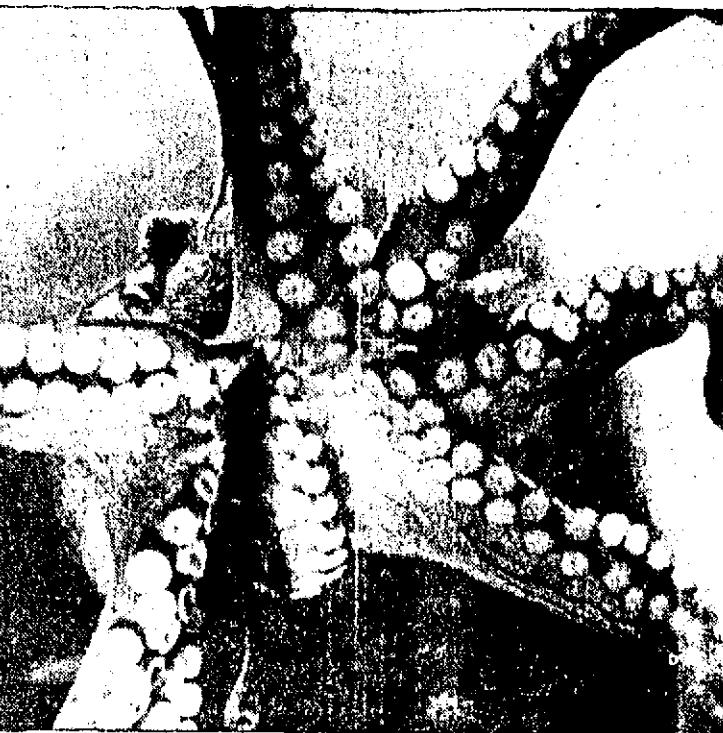

The OPM rushed priorities. Contractors, union workmen, supply and warehouses bent their backs to do what needed to be done.

Oct. 5 Sunday—A new roof spanned the rapidly-rising construction.

Oct. 6—Nearly 45,000 feet of floor space had been cleared and re-equipped as the new machinery, dies and material began to be put in place.

Oct. 1—At 3 p. m. the first casting was broken out, just one week after the fire which had gutted the building.

Giant Octopus, Killer, With Whale Exhibit

Pictured above is a giant octopus, commonly known as the devil fish, which is dredged by the deep sea diver more than any other inhabitant of the ocean.

The one pictured here, having a spread of more than 12 feet, was captured recently off the southern coast of California and will be exhibited in Hope, today (Thursday) as one of the many oddities of the mammoth whale exhibit which will be located on the railroad siding at the Missouri Pacific Depot.

The exhibition will be continuous from 2 p. m. until 11 p. m. and all children under 14 years of age will be admitted free when accompanied with adults.

Italian Anti-Fascists Around World Building For 'Army of Liberation' to Free Native Land

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer

NEW YORK—Maneuvers of psychological warfare are back of the separate peace for Italy. The talk started with the President's conferences with the American ambassadors to Italy and the Vatican, William Phillips and Myron C. Taylor, against General Wavell's last try. If the British drive close enough to Sicily to use Malta as a stepping-stone, not only planes and tanks but troops might come from America, and through Italian-American efforts. A Free Italian army begins to take shape. In Canada officers and men are gathering, including volunteers from the U. S.

There has been no publicity for this crusade, nor for its counterpart on the other side of the world. In India are most of the nearly 200,000 Italian prisoners taken by the British. Among them enthusiasm for Free Italy is being spread by Italian-American members of the Mazzini Society, newly-arrived in India to recruit volunteers to the Army of Liberation. They report very good results indeed. Free Italian parachutists have already landed in Italy, although that meant death if they were caught. All Free Italians are eager not only to free Italy from the yoke of Fascism and the Gestapo, but to show the world that in such a cause, Italians will fight, not run away or surrender.

Italian-Americans in New York and elsewhere are optimistic of success. They believe a British-Free Italian invasion of Sicily would be an excellent diversion, forcing the Nazis to withdraw troops from the Russian front to "defend" Italy. They believe also that the sight of more of the hated Germans walking in on them would further infuriate the Italians and might even help precipitate revolt. Unlike the Czechs, Poles and others, the Italians still have arms.
